NAVAL BASE HARMLESS

Success Claimed by the Officers Who Had Charge of the Difficult Enterprise of Sinking Ship at the Harbor's Mouth in Face of Fierce Resistance.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 11.—It is declared on authority that the second cruiser Vindictive lies in the neck of the channel at the entrance to Ostend harbor at an angle of about 40 degrees. It is obvious a vessel 300 feet long lying at this angle does not effectively block a channel some 320 feet wide, but a very useful purpose has been served. A partial and very serious blockade has been achieved, and under conditions of tide and rapid silt prevailing on the Belgian coast the obstruction will tend to increase. It is not claimed the sunken cruiser will prevent the egress of submarines, or even entirely stop that of destroyers. However it will materially hamper both, and this is important.

Having found his bearings the captain swung his concrete-laden cruiser around and rammed her stem against the eastern pier leaving his lieutenant to work the engine with the object of sending the ship across the channel. He then discovered the cruiser was aground and that it was impossible to turn her any further. He called his crew from the engine room and stoke hold and set off explosive charges. According to the Central News report, the Vindictive is lying submerged at an angle of forty degrees at the eastern entrance with her stem against the pier.

While the vessel was being abandoned two motor launches went alongside under a heavy machine gun fire and succeeded in bringing off the men. May 11.—A number of the officers and men who took part in the operation against the Zebrugge mine, reported in the Central News story of the raid, and their wish was gratified. All the men on the Vindictive were rescued, and the ship was abandoned.

The crew of the motor launches behaved in the most gallant manner, rushing in to see that no one was left behind. One launch brought two officers and thirty-eight men which were wounded, while two other motor launches detailed to the shore, their crew stopped close to the pier and were being the greatest pluck and determination.

Our vessels effectively bombarded shore batteries. The work of the Vindictive in this respect was fine. All together two shells fell within a few yards of two of the mine's gun. Another was hit made and a casualty caused during the whole operation, and not one enemy craft was seen. At 2:30 o'clock according to the program, the retirement was conducted. Commander Lyons, who conducted the blocking operation at Zebrugge, was in command. He tells the following story: "Weather conditions at the start were in every way suitable. There was a light northwest wind. The sea was favorable to small craft, there was a clear sky and the visibility was good. The outgoing passage was made without interference on the part of the enemy. The small craft were all dispatched to their stations with destroyers in support and two coastal motorboats were sent on ahead to the Vindictive until 1:45 o'clock, the enemy was quiet, but just as the Germans began to open fire, the shells showed the smoke screens were progressing excellently. At about this time the sky, which had been cloudy, began to be partly obscured by low drifting clouds. The Vindictive was due minutes before the fog set in at her destination a sea fog set in. This stopped our air attack, indeed at a time when the searchlight could not be seen. This state of things continued almost an hour when it cleared sufficiently for the air attack to be re-

British Aviators Have Been Active During Past Week

With the British Army in France, May 11.—There has been much air fighting during the last few days, and the British aviators have fully sustained the great reputation they established early in the war.

Several days ago near Ypres one British aviator attacked five German single handed. The British engaged one enemy and fought him until he fled. The English pilot then went after another German, and pressed the attack so hard the enemy was forced into a nose stern in an attempt to escape. The British followed him down into the count, less German machine until the latter turned on his back and fell plumb like.

Another British plane was attacked by six enemy machines which came at from below and behind. The British observer opened fire at close range and leaving the leading German machine which dived, then burst into flames. This finished the work of the British pilot who got away safely.

But fighting planes are not the only ones who have been busy. The British bombing squadron have been doing wonderful work destroying railroads, bridges, ammunition dumps and bombing enemy troops. Tons of high explosives have been dropped among masses of the enemy at night causing heavy casualties.

The British machines also have been employed constantly in attacking the infantry from low altitude with machine guns and in many cases have been doing invaluable service directing the fire of British guns and this represents one of the most important phases of the duty of the air corps or the pilot is the eyes of the gunner.

ATTEMPT TO SMUGGLE SUGAR INTO MEXICO

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] El Paso, Tex., May 11.—Gun runners and other border law breakers who thrive upon the illicit traffic between countries characterized by all parties, have turned their attention to smuggling sugar into Mexico.

Sugar is on the American embargo list for the period of the war, and also flour, butter and other foodstuffs. But sugar is the most popular commodity with the smugglers. It is easy to carry across, does not spoil and can be sold at a high price once it is across the border. The smugglers match their wits against those of the government's keenest border police, taking their winnings in American dollars and their losses in the federal penitentiaries.

Although bustles went out of style many years ago the work of the sugar smugglers has been revived by the Mexican women of ample girth wear the rude canvas bustles, and the pockets of their bustles are filled with sugar.

Petticoats padded with sugar and extra size stockings filled with sugar are used by the smugglers and their confederates.

About two o'clock in the morning a large force of destroyers and coastal motor boats came along the shore. The weather was very desirable until 15 minutes before the Vindictive was sunk, when a sea fog set in.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY ANSWERS WAR DEMANDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, May 11.—Columbia university professors have turned from Greek roots to gas engines, and from Plato to airplanes, with remarkable promptness, under the demands of war.

The great university has enlisted even the most academic departments in war work of some kind. The students, usually filled with studious perils, are at this time, are thronged with soldiers and sailors of many sorts, preparing for special lines of military and naval activity.

More than 300 Columbia professors are engaged in war work and nearly 11,000 alumni have reported for duty with the colors.

The United States navy has turned out a school at Columbia has turned out 1,600 engineers for submarine chasers. Prof. C. E. Lucke, director of this school, is exactly nothing a year man. He gets a lecture in government from a professor of Roman epigraphy.

AMERICANS WAITING FOR NEW HUN DRIVE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With the American army on the French battle front, May 11.—Standing shoulder to shoulder with the French on the Picardy front, the Americans are tensely awaiting the new boche offensive. A return of pleasant weather coupled with military observations indicates early attacks.

The doughboys say that the attacks cannot come too quick for them. They are in the pink of condition and tough as leather. The artillery and machine gun units are trained to the minute.

The infantry is itching for a scrap and full of confidence. The French are full of admiration, but this feeling is mutual.

An American officer remarked: "The heinies that clash against the section of the line held by the Americans will find tough going. The physical fitness of the Americans is much admired by the French officers."

The fact that the Germans are screened only by hastily constructed trenches and shallow pits, is hailed as an advantage for the Americans. The Americans are indifferent to the fact that they are at the same disadvantage as the Germans.

The Americans say that the Germans lose their punch and courage when they are out of their trenches. The Yankees call the Germans "sewer fighters."

Both sides are crunched like tigers ready for a spring across the narrow breach of freshly tilled ground between the hastily faced wire protecting the front lines.

Americans are billeted in picturesque villages behind the front lines living in stables and tumble down houses.

The "chow guns" (portable cooking stoves) are kept under cover and bread is stacked about in corners like cord wood.

The men's equipment is adroitly concealed in various places by camouflage. A majority of the civilian population was driven out by shell fire, but there are a few grandmothers in white bonnets and blue aprons and children anxious of danger. All children are veritable mothers to the Americans, many of whom now speak French fluently.

Gutson Berglum In Statement Denies All Charges Made

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, May 11.—Gutson Berglum, accused of having sought secretly to capitalize his friendship with President Wilson by undertaking to promote a private airplane company, today issued a formal statement denying any connection now or at any time with any airplane production concerns or any plan or organization.

He declared further the investigation of the opposition to the war department's air craft production in which a billion dollars in eleven months has provided with hno planes and charged that every subterfuge had been resorted to to gain time.

STARTLING EVIDENCE IN THE I. W. W. TRIAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, May 11.—"If there is any use for war there is a field for it far and wide on our continent," members of the I. W. W. were advised by official papers after American entered the war according to evidence at the trial today.

"Our enemy is powerful and we know who are our enemies," Frank K. Becker, special prosecutor, read to the jury before which the 112 defendants are being tried.

"If you have created weapons to kill, remember your real enemy is the capitalist class."

"If the government with its wild idea of industrial or military revolution thinks it can stop the efforts of the I. W. W. the men who mine the ore, hew lumber and harvest the wheat, it has another guess coming," one piece of anti-war propaganda declared.

Draft Has Called Million Men to Arms During the Past Year

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, May 11.—More than 1,500,000 men have been called to the colors arrayed and others are in France in camps or under call to go into service before June 1. The total of 1,500,000 includes all men summoned to the May contingent. There is every indication that even a larger increment will be summoned in June than in May and a progressive month number and full months as the contingents are expanded. It is expected at this rate the army will reach a full strength of well over three million within the next twelve or thirteen months. It is possible some officers say that the number will be closer to five million than three million.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS ARRIVE IN LONDON

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, May 11.—Five trains loaded with American troops arrived in London this morning. They were formed at the Wellington Barrack for their march through the streets of London today.

The troops will be reviewed by Ambassador Page at the American embassy and later by King George at Buckingham palace. The Americans came through the Gare d'Orsay to begin the march through the West end street and thence to the embassy and Buckingham palace. Members of the war cabinet including premier Lloyd George, chancellor Bonar Law, viscount Milner and J. Austin Chamberlain came out on the balcony at the war office and watched the parade from the balcony.

The American flag was carried by Mr. Lloyd George, which was taken up by other members of the war cabinet and by other people on the street.

CATTLE BREEDERS TO GATHER IN MILWAUKEE FOR ANNUAL SESSION

Milwaukee, May 11.—When on June 4 the members of the Holstein Friesian Association for America gather in Milwaukee from all parts of the United States and the position of the breeding stock will be discussed in the pasting of his association of cattle breeders has been in the East, and the executive committee of the Wisconsin and certain of the other western states will be leaders in the movement.

Opposition has developed to the national secretary, F. L. Houghton of Brattleboro, Vermont, and there is a possibility that the delegates from Wisconsin and other Middle Western states may unite on one and Western secretary for this important position. Among those whose names are being mentioned for the secretaryship are: W. L. Baird of Waterville, Minn.; J. H. Rader of Port Arthur, Minn.; H. J. Wilder, of St. Paul, Minn.; and others.

It is also reported that many of the western delegates are working for removal of the German officers from the national western point, it is believed that the interests of the breeders would be best served if headquarters were located in the central part of the United States.

The meeting to be held in Milwaukee on June 4 and 5 promises to be of the greatest importance to Holstein interests in particular, and the second in general.

German Prisoners Report That American Shells Have Recently Destroyed "Flammenwerfer" Brought Up for Attack

With the American Army in France, May 11.—Previous to the American raid into the village of Apremont a private carried out single-handed Thursday afternoon an excursion into the village and brought back the report it was deserted. This was confirmed by the larger patrol this morning. The private, who is a "striker" for the lieutenant who conducted this morning's patrol, learned the lieutenant planned to do so and decided to beat him into the village. Immediately after dinner the private slipped out from behind the American barb wire and crawled across No Man's Land without being observed. He reached Apremont, crawled about the outskirts, and returned with the information only a few Germans were there.

The patrol this morning encountered the Germans in the village. They retreated hastily when the Americans attempted to capture them and signalled for a barrage, which laid across the village and it returned to the American line. German prisoners taken by the French in Apremont forest this morning confirmed reports of American shells recently demolished "flammenwerfer" brought up for attack on Americans near Apremont. The artillery concentrated his fire on the village after a German prisoner reported an attack was coming from that direction.

German patrols continue active along the front. One attempted to rush American outposts but was driven off by rifle fire. An American outpost caught a German trench dog. The pouch about his neck contained a message. The German retained the message and the trench dog, and their own shells were landing in Cantigny. This confirmed previous information reported by American outposts.

With the American forces on the French front, May 11.—American batteries bombarded the enemy line heavily last night. The shells causing the villages of Cantigny and Mesnil St. Georges, west of Montdidier, held by the Germans.

London, May 11.—French troops advanced their line slightly yesterday, east of Loere on the Flanders front, the war office announced.

Paris, May 11.—Heavy artillery fighting on the front below Antwerp in the region of Grivecourt and Maredieu is now in progress. The French gained ground on the southern side of the Picardy battle front near Arras. The German artillery fighting along this line is violent.

ON SOUTHERN EDGE.—On the southern edge of the Lys salient the Germans are bombarding the British sector and are paying attention to British positions along Vimy ridge on the Arras front. On the Somme the British are holding the line and the battle front is quiet.

FRENCH ARE FIRM.—The French hold on Grivecourt park on the front, south of the Somme is still secure. The Germans are shelling the new French positions intensely, but have not attempted counterattacks. In the region of Grivecourt and Maredieu the Germans have been bombarding the British in the villages of Cantigny and Mesnil St. Georges, west of Montdidier. The German artillery fighting along this line is violent.

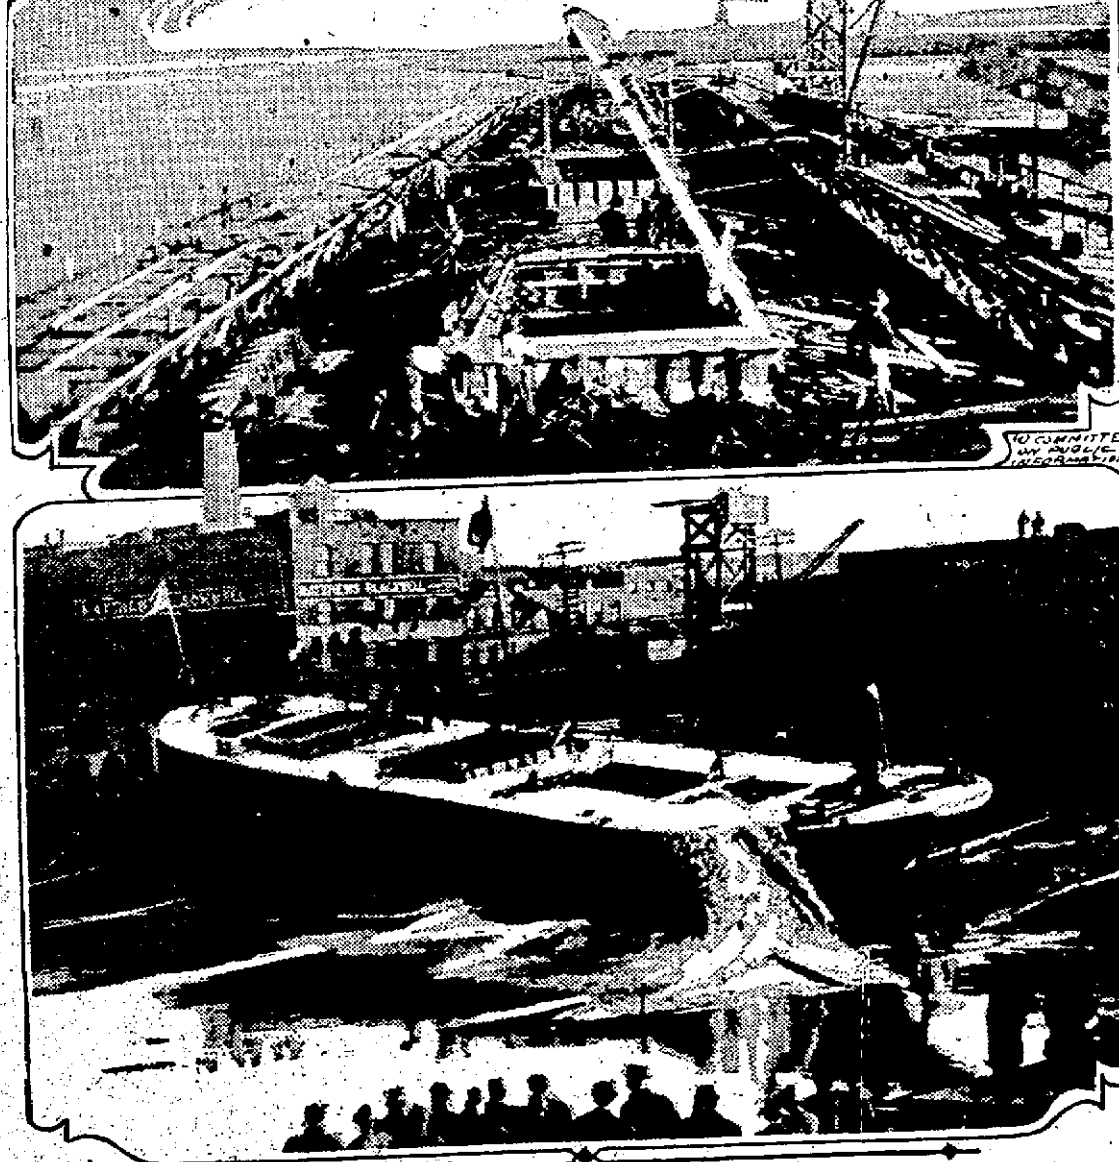

ON SOUTHERN EDGE.—On the southern edge of the Lys salient the Germans are bombarding the British sector and are paying attention to British positions along Vimy ridge on the Arras front. On the Somme the British are holding the line and the battle front is quiet.

IN ITALY.—Active artillery firing is going on at some of the sectors of the Italian front. The Italian and Macedonian and more important minor fronts. There also have been local engagements on these fronts, but no heavy fighting.

PREPARING FOR MOVE.—Whatever big move the Germans may be preparing for on the western front they are finding an active and alert foe confronting them. The French official statement, in particular, fairly beams with accounts of intensive artillery and machine gun activity and more important minor fronts against the Germans in various sectors.

MILWAUKEE GIVEN HIGH STANDING IN THIRD LIBERTY LOAN

(By Ellis B. Lisher.)

Milwaukee, May 11.—The third Liberty bond sale has concluded with Milwaukee ranking seventh among the cities in the country, with a subscription of 181%. Milwaukee county exceeded her quota by 200%, with 56,423 individual subscriptions. The total is $23,000,550. This amount the rural and suburban group furnished $1,308,500 and the women's group $2,511,000, while Milwaukee's biggest industries, the meat trades, furnished over $4,000,000.

These are impressive figures and credit. The whole state showed responsive. But, what is all this for? What is all the money against? What is the "Rainbow Division" doing? The next 10,000 will dig deeper into the homes of hearts of Wisconsin than all this government campaign and all this something beside purse strings. On the Red Cross. With over 50,000 in service, including the last call, ought not to take any urging to get ready for this work. As my pastor, Tittsworth, quoted a current lesson last Sunday—"Look, listen, learn!"

It is encouraging to read in the government's "Official Bulletin" that the percentage increase in savings of the American people is already visible. It is estimated that savings accounts have grown from twelve to sixteen billions of dollars annually. That is a big stride toward saving. It is for it should always be remembered that our bond sales always produce large sums that we are lending to our allies. We ought to do better than England and it is estimated that England is paying her way. The excess of her money over her own share in the cost of the war, she is lending to her allies. In England, and so far, a very large measure in this country, the people of large fortune have cut down to an economical basis much faster than the average American. This, too, is a lesson for us. War wages increased so fast in England that, for a time, there was great extravagance among both men and women workers. The same tendency is active here. Big wages are being spent in luxuries but the lesson came soon in England that war was permanently crippling the homes of many. Many will never return to the normal have been forced to think of looking into the future with prudence and foresight. Then, too, as war expenses nearer to every hearthstone, luxuries decrease. The manufacture of automobiles and pianos must stop or be greatly curtailed, because the materials cannot haul them. The materials the war falls upon us the less time and money can be afforded for useless things. This is a lesson that the wise American will learn before he is forced to face it.

There is another solemn lesson that goes along in sequence with these re-fections. The American people should waste none of their energy or time on political wranglings. We need no reference book more impressive than the history of the Civil war to enforce this injunction, and I suggest to the man who wants the real flavor of that time to refer to the history of the more scientific histories of recent years leave out many suggestive details, and historians of a later time lose much of the flavor in their broad interpretation. Losses will show the reader the weary years that Lincoln passed between 1861 and November, 1864, surrounded by critics who were not only carping but abusing, in his own party, and by treason and conspiracy in the democratic party. Happily there is nothing to match Lincoln's trials, so far, in Mr. Wilson's experience, but no patriotic citizen should spend energy in criticism that he can put to better use by doing what the government calls upon him to do, and doing it silently and promptly. The French have shown us the model of a self-sacrificing, brave, determined and united people. We still have too many gaffes and too many conventions. We waste a lot of time.

At one time and another there has been discussion of kaolin beds in Wisconsin. If Wisconsin has any such beds that are worth developing, now is the time. This week's Press Bulletin of the U. S. Geological Survey devotes a special insert to the question of American use of English clay. It says American manufacturers find it difficult to get English clay now and that American clay producers are careless and do not offer anything as clean as the English article. In 1917 this country imported over $1,600,000 worth of kaolin and other clays, nearly all from England. The average price in 1917 was $5.61, while domestic clay brought only $2.16. Kaolin, which is 80% of the imports, is used in the manufacture of glass, paper, electric light sockets and other necessary articles.

Short Notes.

Probably every student or lover of art has noted that a madonna painted by an Italian has an Italian face, a Dutch madonna is Dutch in its characteristics and so on through the list. Unconsciously the artist puts his ideal in his canvases and his ideal is fixed in his own racial characteristics. Just now there is an interesting demonstration of the many-sided American race in the pictures of Uncle Sam's countenance fits all the racial elements of our conglomerate people. Accordingly as the ideal of the artist directs his pencil or brush. The old time "Yankee Doodle" of seventy years ago has almost disappeared. The government has already taken steps to protect the people from profiteering in ice. The profiteers in all such necessities may flourish temporarily, but sooner or later the heavy hand of Uncle Sam will fall if they don't obey his warnings.

The official bulletin this week calls upon people to economize in meats while the season of milk and fish is furnishing plenty.

The average American soldier is spending twenty cents a day. The rest of the men are sending home. There's a good lesson for those at home.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy eighteen years old. My mother is dead and my father, sister and I live together. I love my sister more than any other girl, and I am really jealous when other fellows come to see her. She tries to get me to go with her.

One night a short time ago I had a date with a girl and my sister was with me. She wanted me to bring the girl over to our house and have some music. I took a long time getting ready and when I got over to the girl's house she had gone off with another girl. She would tease me so I called at the house of one of her friends, a girl three years older than I am. I told her that I had gone for the other girl first and asked her if she would come over to help me. She is a good sport and she came.

What I want to know is, was it right for me to tell her that I had asked the other girl first, or should I have just invited her over without saying anything? GEORGE.

In a case like yours you have to judge by the character of the girl. There are many girls who are perfectly willing to go after other girls have been invited if the boy is only frank about it. There are other girls who will not go if they know they have been invited second. It is usually safe, though, to be frank.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old and was raised at home without any schooling. Can you tell me somewhere I could go or of someone I could get to come to my home to teach me? I would like very much to learn to read, write and figure. What books can I get to help myself? IGNORANCE.

Go to the principal of the high school and have him suggest what will best suit your case. He will probably know of a good teacher who can instruct you and he will be able to advise you what books to get to help yourself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am fourteen years old and in the eighth grade at school. We have class parties and the boys and girls like to play postoffice. I am the only girl that will not play and the boys all make fun of me for not playing and so do the girls. What shall I do, (2) All my playmates like me more than anyone else. I don't know why as I try to be as good to them as possible. Please tell me how and why they act that way, and what I should do to make them like me better. FORSAKEN.

(1) Postoffice is cheap and young people with refined taste do not play it. Refuse to join in the game and be independent about your refusal, not caring what the boys and girls say. If they see you are sure you are right they will have respect for you.

(2) You probably want things to go your way and do not fall in line with what your friends are doing. Never oppose them about your refusal, but do it with vigor. Suggest other things to do if you want to, but do not try to force them to accept your suggestions.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years old and have been going with a boy for a year. He expects me to leave for France soon and he wants me to kiss him goodbye. Do you think I should, kiss him? We are not engaged. NELL.

You are too young to go with boys and to kiss them. I wouldn't let it if you were older and really in love.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Some time ago I found that I was eating too much, like most folks who eat too much. I dawned on me. You know the dawn really comes slowly, and not suddenly. I don't know when I was adjusting my office scale. Every doctor has a scale in his office to weigh his patients with. Well, one day I got on and I was fifteen pounds too heavy.

That night there was a quarrel at our dinner table. I started it. I decided the meat. Well, my dear working husband and father, I don't know how that goes. A needless sprang up. It was a quarrel about the bill of fare. I had better Half constrains his self denial as a reflection upon the reason for the high price among us men. It is forced upon us.

But I had a bright idea. I said nothing about this idea, because when I mention such things my family un-announcedly exhibits alarm. I thought of the Karrell Cure. I would Karrell myself.

I was always like to try these little stunts on the family dog before introducing them to this column. The dog survived three weeks of Karrell regimen, two days a week—and lost some eleven pounds, to say nothing of a growing grouch.

Then I introduced the regimen to the readers of this column. And right here was where I made a mistake. I thoughtfully called the Karrell cure, in central Europe a "cure" is any line of treatment—entirely different from the meaning of the word in this country. What might be called "making the cure" in Europe would be called "stopping at the Springs" in America. That was my mistake. I called this Karrell regimen, and a certain share of readers acquired the notion that I was recommending a cure for their ailments, whereas I was only suggesting a remedy.

There is a pretty strong word in America. Few intelligent physicians dare use it at all. It is no cure at

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

5. When, in a theatre, it is necessary for a person to reach the front of the theatre, you should rise slightly from your seat to allow them to pass freely. (Questions Answered by Etienne L. Riley.) (Miss Riley will answer in this column all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a three-cent stamp.)

The jewelry a woman wears is always the keynote to her personality, and no woman of refinement wears many pieces of jewelry. Small jewelry is not to be worn in the morning, and for afternoon a simple necklace, brooch or chain of the best quality is all that is good taste. In the evening one has a wider scope for their possessions in that line may be worn so long as one chooses these pieces which are harmonious.

Miss B.—For an afternoon luncheon to be served to your young men and women friends, I would suggest that while simple refreshments are a time in good taste, as this particular occasion is especially so. If you have a tea table or tea cart, the refreshments could be served from that, making the affair informal. Cream, cheese and olive sandwiches or raisin sandwiches, with a filling of shredded lettuce and mayonnaise, coffee or chocolate, as you prefer, salted nuts and small macarons would suffice. You may elaborate by serving buffet style. In this case, the most of the foods would be arranged on a table, and the menu may include a salad arranged in a platter, coffee and passed to each guest. Cream, cheese and olive sandwiches may be served with this, and small frosted cakes with olives, salted nuts, are arranged upon the table for convenient service.

him to see papa.

Daisy—What happened?

Maisie—Why, they started to play cards and now he goes to see papa every night.

Household Hints

MENU HINT.

Breakfast: Cooked Cereal Flax, Fish Cakes (from Salt Cod), Coffee. Lunch: Vegetable Salad Sandwiches, Olives, Cocoa Bread Pudding. Dinner: Pilaf Biscuits, Combination Salad with Mayonnaise and Cheese and Nut Balls, Date Pudding, Rye Bread.

SALADS: Crisp, green salads should play an important part in planning the early spring menu. As not only are they appetizing and wholesome, but they may also be utilized as the main course for the evening dinner and followed by a good dessert thereby effecting a material saving in the budget.

Myonaise Dressing—One heaping teaspoon flour, one teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, four tablespoons sugar; mix all together and into it beat one egg. Then beat cream. Stir the egg into the cream. Turn it into a bowl and beat the time over above. Boil two-thirds cup vinegar, turn it slowly, then return it to the bowl and beat. Add the cream, then the egg, and beat. Boil and cook until thick as cream. Take from stove and add two tablespoons butter or as much more as you can afford. This makes one pint of dressing.

Springtime Fruit Salad—Mix equal parts of peeled chopped radishes, diced celery and pineapple cut into cubes. To each cupful add a half of the combined ingredients add one half a cupful of boiled dressing made without mustard, to which has been added two tablespoons of stiffly whipped cream. Serve in individual portions on lettuce leaves and garnish with halved Maraschino cherries. A fruit salad made of these ingredients is a most desirable course.

Sardine and Shrimp Salad—Take equal parts of shrimp and sardines, marinate separately in a little vinegar. Mix the salad bowl with a layer of cold asparagus tips, sardines and in dice, thinly sliced shrimp divided tomatoes, then one of the sardine mixture. It is desired. Serve with French dressing.

TRY THESE

When Washing Dishes—Never place the handles of any riveted knife in the water, or the blade will become rusty. Use a quart measure or other pitcher and fill with hot water and a pinch of washing soda. First wash the blade with a cork and clean the handle with a brush. After the dishes are washed, after the other dishes are washed, then stand it upright in the water. To prevent Bleeding from becoming streaked with bluing when the latter is added to water that is hot, mix the bluing first with hot water before adding it to the final rinsing.

Chopping Hint—When chopping dates, citron, or raisins for cake or other pastry, mix in the ingredients a portion of the flour which is to be used in the baking. This prevents the fruit from sticking to the chopper. It is an especially commendable precaution to take when making fruit cake.

Improved Metal Polish—To keep the metal of pipes, faucets, and other brass or lacquer work bright and shining, clean it thoroughly with the usual metal polish and then paint the polished surface with a coating of banana oil which is sold at any hardware store. The oil acts as a preservative on the metal and triples its endurance.

To Remove Oil or Grease—Rub the hands on a stick of soap after peeling onions and the odor will be entirely removed.

LETTING YOUR LIFE GET SET.

A woman who has been married several years was speaking to me one day of her children. She said, "I am a mother of three children, and I am a mother of three children."

In a way, she would like children, she said; she was really fond of children (if they were good) and she would have a great deal of fun with them. She felt sure they would be a great comfort as one grew older, and doubtless she was missing them, but she was not having them. "If we should have children now, we would have to change our whole method of living. Where our winter home is, there are no good schools, and we always board in summer, and if course we couldn't do that with children. I hope we shall have them some day, but really it would be terribly upsetting just now."

Though I'm Not the Seventh Daughter of a Seventh Daughter.

Without being the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, I can prophesy that woman's future. The years will go by, in that swift, noiseless way that years have of slipping past us, and she will be saying, "I wish I had had children, but not just now, and by and by it will be too late."

In the days of our mothers and fathers, it was the rule and not the exception for young married people to have children in the first years of their married life. The babies came and the fathers and mothers adjusted their lives to them as a matter of course.

They Don't Want To Be Tied Down.

And then a wiser generation came along. And they said that it was too bad to be tied down by children at once. They wanted companionship for a while. "Be and by" they would like to have children but not now. And so they organized their lives on that basis and when the first two or three years had passed claimed for themselves the right to whom I write that their lives had set in that form, that the idea of a change was repugnant to them, and even a difficult even a responsible task. And so some of them, defiantly decided that they didn't want any babies after all, and some of them, like this woman, went on saying, "I wish I had had children."

Life Planning To Give Away Some Definite Portion.

It seems to me to compare a greater thing to a less is some-thing like making up one mind to save or give away a definite portion of one's earnings. It is one makes up one's mind to save, and the beginning one does it easily. If one does not, other demands claim the whole income (or more) and saving or giving, means a painful readjustment. Understand, I am not denying

The Daily Novelette

AGUINALDO Spoonfahank, the society madman sat in dejection, pondering up the attitude of Suwilla Bibbles, the charming heiress whom for years he had wooed in vain. "She seems to me," he muttered, and then started for a strange client, a woman, heavily veiled, had entered the ante-chamber. Summoned, he faithful Hindoo servant, Mikki Kalla Han, in a little while, and report to me what she is. She will want to spirit reading. She is a stranger to me, and I cannot give her a spirit reading unless I know her."

In a short time Mikki reappeared. "Sure," he said, speaking with a decided Hindoo accent, "I can't be-leave out anything about her, be-cause she is a spirit."

But she do be wantin' a spirit reading."

Slowly the veiled lady entered. Aguinaldo assumed a becoming Yogi attitude and spoke.

"Little lady," he said in the hon-ey-toned voice which had made him a popular crystal seer, "you are a young woman here for a purpose."

"Yes," she said, in a muffled tone.

"Yes, yes," he replied. "Now I will tell you about your family. Your father, do not deny it, was a man!"

"How wonderful!" breathed the client. "He was."

"And your mother," pursued the medium, "your mother was a woman."

"She was," whispered the veiled lady, in a low tone.

"In your family," said Aguinaldo, "there is a man named John."

"How did you know?" exclaimed the visitor.

"And you," pursued Aguinaldo, "are beautiful!"

"Are beautiful?" the mysterious stranger protested modestly. "Yes," said Aguinaldo firmly, "and about you there is a certain indescribable something."

Sales of the Friendly Forest

Well, before I go any further, I'll tell you that the little birds were so delighted with the chocolate cake which the little rabbit left for them on clean white stone, as I told you in the last story, that they went right to sleep after eating it and dreamed of a little white candy bunny and a big birthday cake with seven pink candles on it. And after that little Billy Bunny hopped away, lippity, lip, clip, clip, and by and by he came to the Old Brush Heap where Cousin Cotton Tail lived before she moved next door to his mother in the old Briar Patch at Snake Pond Corner. And just as he reached the little path that led into the Old Brush Heap he met Mrs. Grouse with her brood of little brown birds.

"Good morning, Billy Bunny," she said, while her small brood hid themselves in the dry leaves that strewn the ground. "Come here, children," she called. "Billy Bunny won't hurt you. He's a friend." So the little brown birds came out from their hiding places and stood in a row and bowed as nicely as any birds could. And gave them a candy carrot. Wasn't that kind of him? And after that he heard a little poem, and how a wild canary, who was sitting close by, told it to me.

And this is the way it went: "I am Billy Bunny from Old Snake Pond Corner Town."

So don't be worried, don't be hurried, little birds of brown. Mother knows I will not harm you. I'm no cruel snake to charm you. So be merry; here's a cherry From the Circus Clown."

And then he gave them a big red cherry, a candy cherry, you know, which his friend the Clown at the city circus had given him a long time ago. "Well, I must be hopping along," said the little rabbit, the cherry candy all to pieces until there was nothing left but the stone. So away he went again to seek more adventures, and after a little while, not so very long, he came to the railroad bridge where you remember he and his brother Bobby Tail had taken a ride one day, oh so long ago, maybe one hundred stories back, in a big empty freight car. And just then a train came by. Suppose he thought the little rabbit wanted to get aboard. And the brakeman helped him on and away went clunkity, clunk, clunkity, clunk, while the smoke from the engine trailed off behind him a long gray feather. And the train didn't stop until the brakeman called out Lettuceville, where a thousand little rabbits roused lovely green lettuce in a big field. And in green lettuce in a big field. And the little rabbit scratched his ear and had some lettuce salad, too, all covered over with sugar dew.

Crop Conditions Better.

Wausau, Wis., May.—Copious rains the past few days have greatly improved crop conditions in this section of the state. Grains are doing well and pastures have commenced to provide sufficient feed for stock relieving the most serious conditions. Indications are that the county with an increased acreage will produce a record-breaking crop of grains, potatoes, etc.

There are things to be said in favor of having those first two or three years after marriage to oneself. But don't forget this danger. Don't let your life get set.

The path that she traveled and at the end of that path the world over you will find a counterpart of Cousin Annie.

The patent medicine habit is of long standing. Annie was forming it when a pale, gentle girl she sat across the aisle at school from me or walked primly up and down the school walks while I played leap frog. I paid un-while I played leap frog by staying in after school and learning poetry; but I had red cheeks and never took medicine.

I seem to recall that a town scandal; and development was a town scandal; and when it came out that I had run off with a crowd of boys and learned to swim the river, the community gave me up as lost. But I swam and slept on my back. Annie took pills and had headaches. The pills did not cure the headaches, which were caused by lack of oxygen in her blood; but they gave her something to do. The poitice habit dates from an attack of pleurisy. This was a great event in Annie's life because so many people came to call and brought flowers, delicacies and condolences. I remember the occasion rather vividly because of a certain comment on my conduct. The psychology is a white light on the psychology of that sleepy little village with its staid old homes, its mahogany and silver and traditions and pover-

Naturally, as I had been taught that it was a virtue to visit the sick and did not at that time know such excitement retarded their recovery. I rather too, went to see Annie. I was un-aiding. She faded to the way home from an afternoon of sledding with the boys said a few hasty words and ducked out. In the hall I stopped to tie my shoe and so caught a remark made by Annie's mother to a visitor:

"Isn't it too bad about that child? Was what she said. 'She ought to be a lady; but look at her. Her cheeks are as red as a washerwoman's and she is growing into a regular amazon. Look at her arms, look at her legs, look at her development. It's actually indecent."

I came home and I got home and saw my broad shoulders, and I have not yet forgiven Annie's mother for making me feel that my out at seventy.

STATE ORCHARDISTS WAGING WAR ON PESTS

Madison, May 11.—Wisconsin orchardists are busy waging war on the pests which would lessen the state's fruit harvest.

Leaders in the movement for a big and better apple crop are asking other owners of fruit trees: "Are you expecting to harvest any apples this year?" they called. "If you are, why, and otherwise un-derstand, you are going to be clean, smooth, and attractive to see and satisfying to use."

Representatives of the College of Agriculture are urging the applica-tion, as soon as the buds of the apple trees open up in clusters so as to show pink, of a spray called "pink" spray of arsenic and lead, one pound of powder to 50 gallons of water. This will kill leaf rollers and other early bud and leaf chewing insects. Lime sulphur used at the rate of five quarts to 50 gallons of water is added to combat apple scab and other fungous diseases.

Morning found all hands more nearly rational and feeling the first glowings of a healthy hunger. Even Asencio confessed to a quite noticeable improvement. While Evangelina prepared breakfast the lovers agreed upon a story to explain the origin of this mysterious gold piece, and later Johnnie warned Jacket for a second time to keep his tongue between his teeth.

Jacket nodded his complete comprehension. "Sure! All Spaniards are robbers and they'll kill us for a peso. Yes, and the peddlers are no better. I tell you we need to get out of this place."

"I intend to arrange it at once, but—the sight of those jewels has frightened me. If we are searched—if we are even suspected—I'm wondering if Rosa can endure the hardships we'll encounter when, or if, we get away."

"Exactly what I was thinking. I've been considering another plan. I told you about my friend at the market. Well, he is a miserable fellow, but he has a son in the militia."

"One of us?" Jacket was surprised. "Yes. The old fellow owes a volunteer in which he brings charcoal from the eastward twice a month. He might take us out of here—his schooner."

"How well does he like you?" "Oh, we are like two thieves."

"After a period of thought, O'Reilly said, 'Take me to him, and remember, I'm your brother Juan.'"

The Matanzas market did not present a scene of great activity when the two friends strolled into it. Like most Spanish markets, the building was far from clean and boasted odors unpleasant even to starving people. In the smallest section, at one of the fish stalls, Jacket noticed a villainous old brigand in a rough gallega cap, breezy blouse and trousers, and straw sandals.

"Good day, my captain," he cried cheerily. The Spaniard raised his head, frowned ferociously, then waved a long, thin-bladed knife in menacing fashion.

"Ah! So there you are, robber! By off now before I slit your greedy little belly! Didn't I promise to give you to the soldiers if you came back to bother me?"

Jacket was unabashed by this hostile reception. He grinned broadly and with an impudent eye he scanned the empty premises. "Where is my little fish?" he demanded. "As I live, I believe you have sold it! What a miser! For the sake of another centavo you would see me starve? There's a heart for you! Come, give me my fish! Or must I lie down and die before your very eyes to prove my hunger?"

"What a nuisance!" grumbled the marketman. He reached into a basket and flung a mackerel upon the table. "There! I saved it for you, and sent the good women of Matanzas away empty-handed. But it is the very last. Annoy me again and I shall open you with my knife and put salt on you."

"Ah! You are my good captain!" Jacket cried in triumph, possessing himself of the prize. "Where would I have been but for you?" Turning to O'Reilly, who had looked on from a distance, he said, "Captain Morin, this is that brother Juan of whom I have told you."

Morin smiled at Johnnie and extended his dirty palm. "The little fellow can speak the truth when he wishes, it seems. I began to doubt that he had a brother. What a boy, eh?"

"You have a son with the insurrection?" "Yes." The fisherman cast a furtive glance over his shoulder. "Why don't you go and fight by his side?" Jacket demanded. "God forbid!" Morin flung up his hands. "I'm a loyal subject."

"Well, we are going back to fight. We are going to escape and join Gomez once more!" Jacket made the announcement calmly. "S-sh! What talk!" Morin was in a nervous panic lest he be overheard. "As if anybody could escape from Matanzas! What made you come here if you are so eager to fight?"

"I'll tell you," O'Reilly assumed direction of the conversation. "There are three of us brothers, we two and Esteban, a pretty little fellow. He was captured by Cobo's men and driven in, and we came to find him. But he is sick—dying—"

"Of course. They're all dying—the poor people! It is terrible."

"We—" O'Reilly faltered slightly, so much hung upon the manner in which Morin would take what he was about to say. "We want to get him out of here—we must do so, or we'll lose him. Will you help us?"

"In heaven's name, how?" "By taking us away in your charcoal schooner."

"You're mad!" Morin cast another apprehensive look over his shoulder. "I'm a poor man. All I have is my two boats, the civero, which brings fish, and the volandra, which sails with charcoal. Do you think I'd forfeit them and my life for strangers?"

O'Reilly leaned closer. "You say you're a poor man. I will pay you well."

Morin eyed the ragged speaker scornfully. It was plain that he put no faith in such a promise, and so O'Reilly took a piece of gold from his pocket, at sight of which the fisherman started.

"I, too, am a poor man, but I'm willing to buy freedom for my little brothers and myself."

"How many coins like that have you?" "Um—more than one; enough to pay you for several cargoes of coal."

"For the sake of Miguelito," Jacket urged. "Caramba! What a hard-hearted father he got that boy!"

"Tush!" The fisherman was scowling. To O'Reilly he said, "You do wrong to tempt a poor man."

"My brother Esteban is sick. He is a frail little fellow with a crooked back. God will reward you."

"Perhaps! But how much will you pay?" "Ten Spanish sovereigns like this—all that I have."

"No! It is not enough." O'Reilly took Jacket's hand and turned away. "I'm sorry," he said, "I wish I might offer you more." He had taken several steps before Morin hailed him.

"Come back tomorrow," the fisherman cried, crossly. "We will try to talk like sensible people."

The brothers Villar were back at Morin's fish stand on the following afternoon and they returned daily thereafter until they at last prevailed upon the Spaniard's fears and won his promise of assistance. That much accomplished, they made several cautious purchases, a coat here, a shirt there, a pair of trousers in another place, until they had assembled a complete boy's outfit of clothing.

At first Rosa refused absolutely to desert her two faithful negro friends, and O'Reilly won her consent to consider his plan of escape only after he had put the matter squarely up to Asencio and his wife and after both had refused to enter into it.

Then, and not until then, did Rosa begin her preparations. First she made Evangelina cut her hair, a sacrifice that wrung sighs and tears and loud lamentations from the black woman, after which she altered the suit of boy's clothing to fit her figure, or rather to conceal it.

When at last she put it on for O'Reilly's approval she was very shy, very with admirable presence of mind put the plunder into the officer's arms, saying: "You had better take care of that, policeman, or some one will be walking off with it."

A week after old Bobbins departed this land for one of heavenly bliss, or—or, well, heavenly bliss, do—his devoted spouse came into the office of the insurance agent to claim the money.

"I'm awfully sorry, madame, to hear of your loss," said a sympathetic clerk.

"That's always the way with men," sighed Mrs. Bobbins. "Always grudging a poor woman the chance of getting a bit of money these hard times."

A father ruefully gazed on his last dollar. "Money has wings, and house rents make it fly," he benumbedly said.

"You said his fifteen-year-old son," and some houses have wings, for I have seen many a house fly."

"You're smarter than you old dad, maybe, my son; but I always thought there was a bit of a house except the chimney flue!"

Ethel—I'm afraid that bell means another caller. Fred (imploringly)—You know there is such a thing as my not being at home.

Ethel (suggestively)—Yes, and there is such a thing as my being engaged.

DELAVAN

Delavan, May 10.—The funeral of W. D. Eckerson, who passed away at his home on Institute Hill Thursday evening, was held this afternoon from the home, Rev. Mark Miller of the Episcopal church officiating. The remains were laid to rest in Spring Grove cemetery.

John Cotter returned today to Des Moines and his brother-in-law to St. Louis. Mrs. Seward Pemberton will remain here a few days.

Mrs. George Hyleberg, who recently underwent an operation in the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, returned home this afternoon, coming by way of Lake Geneva, where her husband met her with his car. Mrs. Hyleberg's mother returned from Chicago to Delavan by train Wednesday.

Mrs. Henry Hizer of Beloit called on friends here yesterday. Miss Marie Zerler, kindergarten teacher, is ill with measles, and Mrs. T. Duggan is taking her place in school.

Stella Sturlevan-Morris returned Thursday to her home in Onondaga, N. Y. Philo Crofoot has rented the Sage house, which will be vacated by the Leary family.

Mrs. Van Velzer is having the wood-work of her house repainted. M. E. Shanahan is moving the house known as the Goodrich house from the William Thome property on North Fourth street to his property on Ann street, where he will have it rebuilt in a modern residence. He expects to make several improvements on the property where the old stone house is also situated.

Bernard Mooney has been hired to take Thomas Morrissey's place in Rustad's drug store.

The friends of John Murphy will be pleased to read his letter from "somewhere in France" to C. H. Bristol, telling of his satisfaction with his surroundings and being in good health in general. The letter is published in this week's Republican.

A. L. Muckler, government inspector of clothing, has been stationed in Milwaukee, and his wife has arrived in Delavan for a stay with friends.

George Barnes is having the Orendonk house, which he purchased, remodeled. The house is situated on South Sixth street and when finished will be a very desirable residence.

Mrs. Charles Deenen of Darien called on friends here this afternoon. The operation performed on Harry Bashaw for recrossed rib at the Rice sanitarium was successful, although the boy remained under the influence of the anesthetic for several hours.

Mrs. Sheldon has purchased the Turner house, on Sixth street and will take possession soon. Mrs. Turner will join her husband in Indianapolis.

MOLINE KNIGHT

DeLuxe Special—Seven Passenger

Proof of Low Upkeep

- 14 to 16 miles per gallon of "gas" (20 miles is common after 5,000 miles of use)
- 7000, 8000 miles and up, on tires
- 80% LESS carburetor and ignition trouble
- No expensive valve grinding
- No carbon troubles
- No expense for valve adjusting
- Very slight depreciation

(Because the Moline-Knight motor is BETTER after 60,000 miles of use than even when new!)

You don't find Moline-Knight cars "stored away" these days. The cost of driving, including fuel, tires, repairs and depreciation, is so small that it is nearly as cheap to use them as to have them standing idle.

QUICKLY and SMOOTHLY they run—because of their silent, powerful, sliding sleeve valve motors.

Wonderful high-gear flexibility—2 to 50 miles an hour. Ability to accelerate on steep grades. More than enough power. Off like an arrow when you "step on 'er."

The "springiest" springs you positively have ever ridden over. Make the car ride like its wheelbase were 10 inches longer.

Any time a Moline-Knight user has to sell he can get almost what he paid for it. Try to buy a used Moline-Knight and prove it for yourself.

Come on down and let us show you what we've got. If you don't say that it's the best buy within hundreds of dollars of its price, the ride is on us.

Always glad to demonstrate. Doesn't obligate you a particle. Phone, write or drop in any time.

PRICE INCREASES ABOUT $100 on May 15th. Do not wait. Place your order before that date and save the difference.

Has Novel Plan For a Greater and More Beautiful Janesville

Alfred Riedel Suggests Plan For Improvement of Rock River South of Milwaukee Street Bridge Which May End the Long Controversy Between the Public and the Property Owners.

Citizens in general will unquestionably be greatly interested in a novel plan to improve Rock River south of Milwaukee street bridge by constructing a rectangular promenade over the stream with stores facing it on the east and west sides and with a band stand and rest rooms for both men and women on the south side just above the Court street bridge. The originator of this project, which would greatly beautify the city and establish a business thoroughfare in the very heart of the business district, is Alfred Riedel. The preliminary sketch shown below was drawn by F. B. Sadler, who considers the plan absolutely feasible and practical. Let it be said at the outset that in presenting this plan to the city, Mr. Riedel is acting for no selfish reasons; he has nothing to gain by the establishment of such a promenade; he it is proposed to erect a band stand or orchestra shell with enough space in front for the public to gather. Under the orchestra shell and on either side could be constructed a modern rest room for women and a similar rest room for men. A safe landing near the band stand, could be made for pleasure boats. The promenade could be called "Liberty Way" or any other patriotic name suggested by the citizens. This location would be ideal when it is taken into consideration that within a stone's throw there are hundreds of women employed and in another factory hundreds of men, and the spot could be easily reached from all sides. It would enhance the beauty of the promenade if the buildings would harmonize with each other. They should also be constructed out of fire-proof material.

SKETCH OF PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS.

merely suggests the project as a means of making a greater and more beautiful Janesville. It might be also advisable to state that he fully recognizes the fact that construction would naturally have to be deferred until the war has been brought to a successful conclusion. However, preliminary steps should be taken in the near future so that all prejudices, self-interest, and jealousy may be put aside in the interests of the public welfare. Chicago and scores of other large cities are already contemplating the construction of much larger projects are getting the plans and specifications in readiness so that when the war is over and prices of building materials have resumed their normal level, work may be begun without delay.

It is hardly possible to find a single innovation for the betterment of a city which does not at first encounter opposition and ridicule on the part of a few people and this plan to improve the river front in the heart of the city will in all probability be no exception. The substance of the contemplated undertaking can be seen at a glance from this sketch shown here. It will take a year or more to have all those interested in this improvement unite on specific plans and specifications. This sketch is only an outline of the proposed improvements and before definite project could be agreed upon there must be many things to be overcome, as other cities have found, one hundred times as large, each at first seemed impossible and expensive to achieve.

It is proposed to construct on both sides of the river south of Milwaukee street bridge, a promenade on pillars reaching along the Court street bridge, to be connected on the south side with Courts street bridge or from Dodge street to South River street and on the north side to be constructed like the pillars should be constructed like those used for the Milwaukee street bridge in order that the river itself will not be obstructed.

This promenade could be constructed without a roof overhead, which would protect like an arcade, which would protect the promenade against the sun, rain, or snow. The promenade should be only for pedestrians and should be easily kept clean below with a hose. The illustration shows that only a part of the open space would be used for the promenade and for store space adjoining, as the inside between the promenade would leave the river promenade to the view of the promenaders. The property owners, who now, under the decision of the supreme court, have a right to build up to the center of the river, would be immensely benefited by the erection of the promenade. Their property would double in value and the public would have a beautiful place for recreation. Objections that Janesville has enough vacant stores at the present time and does not need any new stores, will not interfere with the stores, which are hardly any new stores to be created. When it is taken into consideration that the stores and mercantile houses on the west side of South Main street and on the bridge the private alley between the bridge and South Main street and in this manner connect their establishments with the show window of the promenade, it is space fronting on the promenade. It is space fronting on the promenade. It is a fact that these merchants need considerable more room and light than they have at present. They would have more "show room" for their enterprises and would be able to give their customers better trading facilities. They would be immensely benefited if they had not only an entrance from South Main street to their stores but also from the promenade or arcade on the river.

WRITE TO SOLDIERS ON SUNDAY, MOTHER'S DAY

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.] Philadelphia, Pa., May 11.—Tomorrow, Sunday, is Mothers' Day. In honor of the best mother that ever lived—your mother, was one of the slogans under which celebration of this day was begun by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia several years ago. The object to bring about world-wide recognition of a specified day as one for universal emphasis of the love men and women owe to a good mother, has won a response from virtually every civilized nation. But tomorrow is to have a significance even deeper than usual. With the assistance of military and naval authorities in the United States, with the country's ships at sea and commanding her troops abroad, and with the aid of the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. officials, the day is to be one for an interchange of greetings between mothers at home and their boys with the colors.

By men in foreign service, it is hoped, the day will be partly devoted to letter writing. Congress has made the day a national flag day. Secretaries Baker and Daniels and General Pershing have endorsed the innovation to be introduced this year, on the theory that nothing so stimulates the morale of fighting men as letters from home. Honoring mothers or their memory through some distinct act of kindness—a visit a letter, or the wearing of a white carnation—are the marks of Mothers' Day observance which have been widely adopted in North and South America, England, Europe and in Australia.

The white carnation has been recognized as the special flower for Mothers' Day. Its whiteness is held its fragrance love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, faithfulness—the embodiment of the virtues of motherhood.

In her annual announcement of the day Miss Jarvis says: "It is not a day of idle sentimentality. It evokes a renewal of allegiance to our highest ideals of womanhood and will contribute to the sanctity of home and motherhood and the strengthening of domestic and national integrity."

Observance of the day has been urged in schools, colleges, churches, fraternal societies, orphanages, and prisons. In recent years mayors of many cities and towns have issued proclamations calling for general observance of the day.

Optimistic Thought. Fortune smiles at those whose resolution forces open her gates.

HEADS RED CROSS IN PALESTINE

Dr. John H. Finley, commissioner of education for the state of New York, has been appointed to direct the Red Cross work in Palestine, rescued from Turkish rule by British and where disease and famine have caused many deaths. Four medical units are to be established in Palestine to combat typhus, cholera and other diseases.

On the west side of the bridge there could be (see the sketch above shows) a building for a public auditorium, for a fine armory, or a parking space for automobiles, which is badly needed in the heart of the city. Business men, farmers and ladies shopping or going to the theater, could store their machines in safety in this parking space, protected from the inclemency of the weather and it would be a meeting place and attraction for hundreds of farmers visiting Janesville. Thousands of people from surrounding cities would be attracted to this promenade and the business men of Janesville would be greatly benefited.

South River street would also derive great benefits and would gradually become a greatly frequented thoroughfare, leading to the promenade either through Dodge street or Pleasant street.

Suggestions of how to improve on this plan will in time bring the desired results, namely: to make Janesville, not only more beautiful, but greater. No business enterprise can stand still; there must be progress or other competitors will out-rank the slow merchant who does not forever try to improve and increase his business. The same truth applies to communities, cities—large or small—and nations, and Janesville is no exception from this rule.

Janesville, aside from its wonderful location as a Rock River center and manufacturing site, has for instance, an entirely neglected site, to make a summer resort although the country along the shores of Rock River far surpasses a good many largely advertised summer resort grounds.

Improvements which could be made to beautify the river front on the north side of Milwaukee street bridge, is another problem but it could be done with very little expense. Launching row-boats from the south side to the north side of the upper dam, would also be of great benefit.

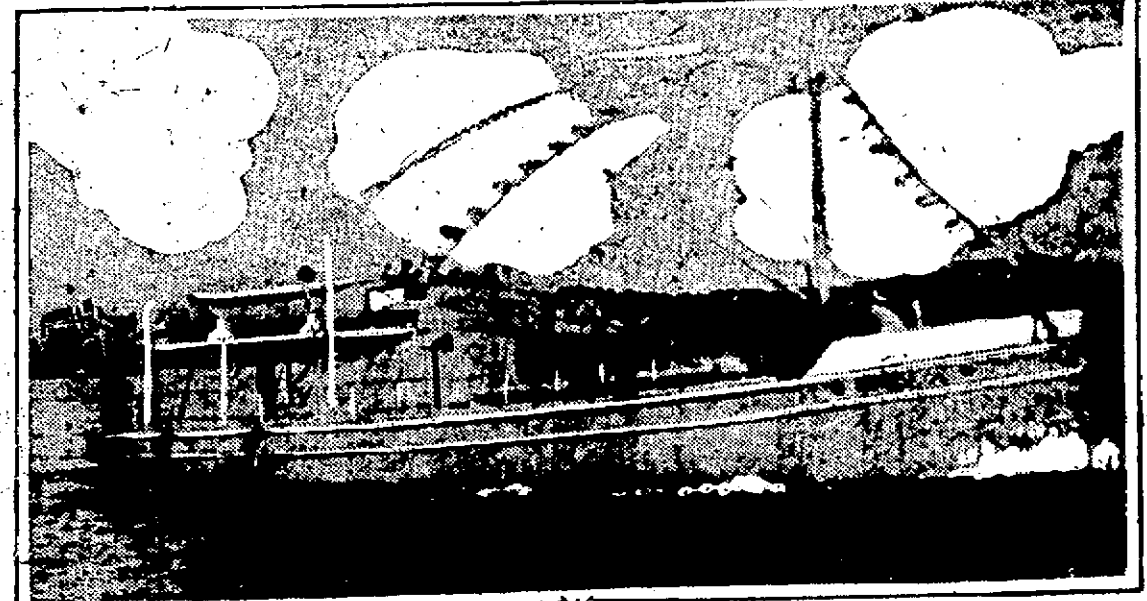

SAWYER COUNTY FARMERS CLEAR BIG AREA OF LAND

Madison, May 11.—Farmers in southern Sawyer county will have cleared more land between April 15 and June 1 than in any like and previous period since the first settlers came to this district. Local community clubs are backing a series of land clearing contests and a string of very liberal cash awards has been hung up to encourage the settlers in their campaign. "Move the Brush Back" and "Keep the Brush Piles Burning," have been adopted as the slogans for the army of land clearers which is adding many acres to Sawyer county's cropping list. Three men deeply interested in the development of Northern Wisconsin have been asked to act as judges of the contests. These are F. S. McCabe, agricultural commissioner for one of the railroads with much experience in Sawyer county; C. F. O'Grady, commissioner of agriculture, and E. R. Jones, head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering of the University of Wisconsin, who is in charge of the land clearing investigations conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station.

OF COURSE MR. WAD SPOKE THE ONE WORD IN OUR WHOLE LANGUAGE THAT HE SHOULDN'T!

BOY IS LIKELY TO WIN TENNIS CROWN

Harold Throckmorton.

Now that the U. S. Lawn Tennis association has decided to resume its national championship fixtures, at the government's request, it is more than likely that the individual championship of the United States this season will pass into the hands of the youngest player to ever try for the distinction. Harold Throckmorton, the slim New Jersey youth of twenty, who plays the smashing California brand of game. Throckmorton will go to the post a favorite in the national tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., next August.

Out in St. Paul they regard Tom Gibbons as a greater fighter than the talented brother Mike. They think that if the two were not brothers that Tommy would be a champion. Incidentally the St. Paul enthusiasm never will believe that Billy Mike can do it again.

This belief of St. Paul in the prowess of Tom Gibbons is reminiscent of San Francisco's attitude toward Jimmy and Willis Britt. Jimmy was one of our great lightweights and at one time claimed the championship. Willis is best remembered as Jimmy's manager, as well as the handler of the late Stanley Ketchel. Yet in his younger days Willis Britt was a great boxer in California. And any number of natives will tell you today that he could have beaten his brother Jimmy the best day Jimmy ever knew.

A similar condition existed in Cleveland in the early days of Johnny Kilbane's struggle for the title. Kilbane's featherweight by the name of Johnny Kilbane resided in Cleveland. He wasn't a brother, nor even a relation of Johnny's, and despite the fact that Johnny handed him a couple of severe beatings many folks believed he had it on the boy who was destined to become the ruler of the 122-pounders.

Cincinnati boasts of a pitcher who won nineteen straight games last year. His name is "Snipe" Conley, and he is a graduate of the Dallas club of the Texas league. His sensational streak began on April 19 and he wasn't beaten until July 11. In this run of nineteen straight victories Conley hurled four shutouts, his third consecutive game being a hitless one as well. The Port Worth Panthers were his victims and he would have owned a perfect game only he passed their left-hander, Williams. This no-hit game was pitched on June 24 and was victory No. 17 in Conley's long list.

Two pitchers in the National league are in the spectacle class this year, it develops. Lee Meadows, wearing a jersey when he works for the Chicago Cubs, and Proctor Hill, who does the "cheaters" when he toils for the Pirates. It would be interesting to see the two face each other as opponents.

We take it there wasn't much of a squabble between Alexander and Uncle Sam about a bonus vote.

Zach Wheat finally decided to join the Brooklyn, but even with the heavy hitting outfielder back in harness Manager Robinson's crew doesn't look anything like a championship outfit.

Lee Magee is going great guns with the Reds, showing no doubt the benefits of home cooking or that the National league is just his size.

Chances are the draft will take the Cubs' entire catching staff. Bill Killebrew has been ordered to report for service, and Rowdy Elliott and Fifty are due for party calls. "It looks as though I'll have to do my own catching," observes Manager Fred Mitchell.

Embryo players will cross bats tomorrow Sunday afternoon at the Fourth Ward park the Romeos will play the Athletics. The Athletics have a strong team and a good game is expected. This is the first of a two-game series between these two clubs.

For the Romeos' Dawson will do the twirling, with Leary catching. Raubacher will pitch for the Athletics with Townsend at catch.

Beloit track team in meet with Carroll (BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)

Waukegan, May 11.—Beloit college and Carroll college clashed here this afternoon in the second of their track duels for the season.

Reformed league has new leader

John H. Farrell, president of the newly organized International league, is to minor league baseball what Ban Johnson is to the majors—only more so. Where Johnson merely keeps a watchful eye on one organization, Farrell, as secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues, has held his hand to the pulse of many leagues. It has been said that Farrell knows the name and address of every baseball player in America.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins, and Later Treasurer of Adams Forepaugh Circuses.

On Saturday April 27, the Rhoda Royal show closed its indoor season at Columbus, O. The Royal show has been making a very successful playing season through the east and at many of the cantonments.

Fred Collier of his city spent Sunday last with his wife and daughter at the Dixon homestead in the town of Rock. Mr. Collier has been one of the Royal's head men for several years and had to report back to Chicago on Monday for a rehearsal for the new circus for the coming summer. It will open the season today, Saturday, May 11, at Wabash avenue and Fifty-ninth street, and for some time will play in what is known in the business as the "Chicago lots."

I asked Mr. Collier the show was well equipped for the summer campaign, and he smiled and said: "Possibly as well equipped as any of them. One of the hardest things to contend with for the past few months is getting tents for the season, as the heavy canvas used in the circus top has been almost impossible to get. We have had to make do with a few working men, but as we will show from three days to a week in one place it will not be so bad as though we had to pull up and run a hundred miles every night."

The great Ringling show opened in St. Louis on Tuesday for a five days' run, after which the show will move to Chicago. The show is also short of help of all kinds, which means possibly the menagerie will not go up and will be impossible at times even to raise the big top. The managers this season can plainly see their show is in a bad way. If it keeps on raining, there will only be a rainy day parade with the big shows for days to come. There are always sets of wheels with the big shows, so in order for the public to see the circus parade at its best they had see it in dry weather. The damage to the big top and the damage to the big top of the receipts of that day.

The Hagenbeck Wallace show, the winter quarters of which are at West Baden, Ind., opened the season on Friday of last week for two days in Cincinnati. The business was lively for the first two days, but on Saturday night the tent was packed down to the ring bank. At the close of the engagement, Ed. Ballard, the proprietor, says his treasurer figured up the two days' receipts and out the entire amount into Liberty bonds.

The show this season is said to be of a higher standard than in years, and on the opening day ran as well as any show in the business for weeks. This is largely due to the equestrian director, Budd Goss, who has had charge of the performances with the show for many years.

The booster parade given by the Showmen's League of America last week in Chicago will give you some idea of the idea of how that organization is giving its support to Uncle Sam.

The Showmen's League of America attested to its patriotic permeation by its membership Monday by a Liberty loan parade, which for novelty in conception and enthusiasm in execution will long be remembered as one of the greatest demonstrations on record of show folks' determination to give the degree of support necessary to the battle field.

At 11 a. m. the participants gathered at 29 South La Salle street, where Director John A. Pollitt, to whom is due much of the event's success, had everything in readiness. First came the mounted police, followed by the Jackies' band from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Then Col. Lavelle (Budd Goss) gave the signal to the parade to start.

Following the parade, the parade was followed by the Jackies' band from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Then Col. Lavelle (Budd Goss) gave the signal to the parade to start.

RULES TO FOLLOW WHEN ORGANIZING

Treasury Department gives Rules and Regulations for Organizing War Savings Society.

With the Thrift Stamp campaign in full swing the question has been raised as to how a War Savings society can be organized according to the Treasury Department rules.

Ten or more persons may organize a War-Savings Society. They may meet in the factory, school, church, clubhouse, the home of one of the members, or at the War-Savings Office. School children may hold meetings in their class rooms at such times as will not interfere with their work. At the first meeting of the organizers, one of the persons present should be elected permanent chairman, and one temporary secretary. The chairman should preside over the meeting and the secretary should keep a record of what takes place. A resolution should then be adopted and signed by all the organizers. The Society to be affiliated with the National War-Savings Committee.

The one requirement for membership in a War-Savings Society is that the person applying shall sign the application for membership and the pledge of citizenship prescribed by the National War-Savings Committee, as hereafter set forth.

If at least 10 of the persons present vote in favor of organizing a War-Savings Society, by-laws for the government of the society should be adopted and a president and secretary elected.

The minutes of the meeting should be taken, the minutes of the meeting should be taken and should send a report to the State Director of War-Savings.

The president and secretary should be instructed to fill out the application blank at the post office, directed to the State Director, asking that the society be designated as a War-Savings Society, affiliated with the National War-Savings Com-

In Rain of Shells Fights On
Thus U. S. Lad Wins Honor Cross

Explosions occurred near him frequently, but he stuck to his job.

Keeping his gun going for minutes after the rest of the battery had ceased firing and clearing out the debris before his gun pit while a terrific bombardment from the German artillery was in progress, won the Croix de Guerre for Sergeant Joseph Petrush of a field artillery command.

Sergeant Petrush was asleep in his dugout when the bombardment commenced. The gas alarm was given, and within an extremely short period the gun crew was up and in gas masks. Three men were kept at the gun all the time. Orders were received to start a barrage, and heavy firing began.

The field piece was soon almost out of commission, but Sergeant Petrush and his men kept it going, although they thought every minute it was going to blow up.

Six times the Sergeant had to go out and clear away the debris before the gun pit logs and other pieces of wreckage that the German shells had blown there. Explosions occurred near him frequently but he stuck to his job.

There came a time when the other guns in the battery ceased firing, but Sergeant Petrush kept his gun going. For a time he thought the other gun had blown up, remembering the condition of his own piece. The spokes of the gun carriage were blown away and the shield was riddled with sharp-nel. The front clip was blown off and the shield still has it as a souvenir.

The sergeant at last, determined to cross over to the other guns and see whether or not they had blown up. Reaching them, he discovered that they had received orders to cease firing. He went back and silenced his own gun. It took four of them where seven are actually required a whole day to clean up the gun pit and set things right again.

Eight days later Petrush was gassed and while he was in the hospital recovering he received the Croix de Guerre.

DOING THEIR BIT TO LICK THE KAISER

A quartet of track workers on the Erie railroad.

Many of the railroads of the country are employing women to perform the heavier duties of the business. The Erie railroad has a number of women laborers, who work as track walkers and car cleaners. Some of them are shown here.

SHALL IRELAND HAVE CONSCRIPTION?
ULSTER FOR IT; NATIONALISTS COLD

Shall Ireland have conscription? The principle prevails in England, Scotland and Wales, and these parts of John Bull's domain believe the Irish should do their full share of the fighting. The Nationalist party, the strongest political organization in Ireland, is bitterly opposed to conscription. The leaders of this party are Joseph Devlin and John Dillon. The people of Ulster, whose spokesmen are Sir Edward Carson, are practically a unit for conscription. The people of Ulster are not of Irish but of Scotch descent. They are as strongly opposed to Irish home rule as they are favorable to the principle of conscription.

Which costs most—painting or waiting?

After your house needs painting, every year you wait it will require more paint and more labor to put it in good condition. And every year you wait, your house is worth less. A little paint-money is good paint-insurance.

Just as soon as your house needs painting, come in and let us show you how little it will cost you to use DEVOE. We say "DEVOE" because it's absolutely pure. That's why DEVOE takes fewer gallons, wears longer—and costs less by the job or by the year. And that's why we guarantee Devoe without reserve.

Janesville Vulcanizing Co.

The Largest and Best Equipped Tire Shop In This Section of the Country,

Owned and Operated By G. F. Ludden

In December of 1911 G. F. Ludden took over, what is known as the Janesville Vulcanizing Co. Situated one block north of the Myers Hotel and directly across the street from the Hotel Planters, on North Main street, is the largest and best equipped tire shop in this section of the country. As the tire business grew, in leaps and bounds, Mr.
Ludden has added new and up to date machinery, to keep up with the times, until at the present time he has the most up-to-the-minute tire shop in the southern part of Wisconsin.

One of the good features of the place is free air at the curb, which should be of interest to every motorist. While this looks very simple to the average car user, to see air at the curb, nevertheless it takes an expensive machine to supply same. Mr. Ludden has his shop equipped with an automatic machine which, turns on when the air gets low and shuts off when the air pressure gets to a certain pressure.

The Janesville Vulcanizing Co., features quality—goods throughout the entire business. Beginning with High-test Pennsylvania Gasoline and oil at the curb. High grade accessories in store; Savage tires guaranteed 4500 miles; Ten Broeck tires guaranteed 3500 miles; first class factory seconds for those who want cheaper goods, and last but not least the famous Goodrich, "best in the long run" known the country over as the company that gives a square deal.

The Janesville Vulcanizing Company invites the public to inspect the plant at any time, they will be ready and willing to show the duty of each machine, and explain the part it takes in the work. The process of vulcanizing is no simple task as may be thought by many. The most important part is preparing the tire, before the new rubber and fabric is applied. This must be done in a workman-like manner or the repair will not hold up.

Mr. Ludden makes one of the longest guarantees that is possible. Every repair must wear out the tire, or he will replace it free of charge. In other words, if any one has a repair job done by Mr. Ludden that has not given the service expected, bring it back and it will be replaced without question.

PUNCTURES REPAIRED RIGHT BY OUR VULCANIZING

There's only ONE way of repairing a puncture—and that's by having it done by our

STEAM VULCANIZING PROCESS

which repairs the puncture perfectly and doesn't injure the tube.

Cement patches are but a makeshift and electric or gasoline vulcanizing "kills" the life of rubber.

Have your punctures repaired RIGHT—by our splendid, perfect steam process.
Section work, retreading, etc., done perfectly and at most reasonable charges.

MOTOR OIL AND GREASE

2000 MILES THEN GREASE
Plenty of oil and cup grease before that of course.

But when you've run 2000 miles those wheels must come off, be packed with grease; that differential needs to be drained and new grease or oil put in; that universal joint wants looking after, and the oil in the crank case must all come out.

Let Us Serve You.
